Thanks for everyone that shared their thoughts. A: Most likely, the links to these collections are generated by a sharepoint content query web part (CQWP). A content query web part creates a view of data from a specified data source that also includes as an option display of a 'collection' in the navigation bar. If a user navigates to a page, that page is appended to the list. This is how the navigation bar is populated. If the user returns to a page that they previously viewed, the CQWP reads the 'collection' pages from the list that is created. With the CQWP, a new list is created for each set of pages, in this case the 'collection'. The CQWP uses the pages from the list as 'source' data and appends each page to the collection. If the user deleted the 'collection', the CQWP would then detect that, remove the list from the navigation bar, and remove any pages appended to that collection. You must ensure that the CQWP is configured such that you have a 'collection' generated for c6a93da74d
